

Corvette Owner's Photo Album Documents Your Corvette Build Process Now Available

Bowling Green, KY – The National Corvette Museum is offering enthusiasts purchasing new Corvettes a chance to document their Corvette's "build process" through the Corvette Assembly Plant with a commemorative Corvette Owner's Photo Album. Created in conjunction with support from the Bowling Green Corvette Assembly Plant, the leather bound album will include 20 pages of photos and descriptions devoted to capturing the Corvette build on the assembly line, a letter of authenticity and a letter from the Corvette Assembly Plant Manager and Executive Director of the Museum.

The photo album opportunity is available to new Corvette owners who choose to take delivery at their Chevrolet Dealership and participants of the Museum's R8C Museum Delivery and Buyers Tour programs. "We feel this program it is a great way to add a new aspect to being a new Corvette owner," states Museum Delivery Program Manager, Gary Cockriel. "Corvette owners appreciate every piece of documentation created to keep their Corvette's heritage alive, and this photo album is a great way to cherish the first steps of a Corvette's life and build."

Enthusiasts purchasing a new Corvette who are interested in ordering a photo album can get detailed information via the Museum's website at www.corvettemuseum.org Photo album orders can be placed once the owner has an order number from their dealer. More information on taking delivery of your new car at the Museum through the R8C program or scheduling a visit to watch your Corvette being assembled through the Buyers Tour program is available at:
